reserve the right, at our absolute discretion, to substitute any product with an alternate product of a similar style and equivalent (or greater) value and quality. When substitutions are made we will match as best we can to the flower choice and colour scheme.

Additionally, as a natural product there may be slight colour variations in the flowers, some may appear in darker or light tones than presented unless specified in the stem count.

These are the outermost petals of the rose and will be the oldest part of the rose. On arrival there may be slight browning or bruising on these petals which is a natural occurrence in our roses. As the rose begins to open up over the next few days, they will fold back. If you wish, you can lightly tug on these guard petals to remove them upon delivery, some florists remove them in person or in store but we keep them on for deliveries to prevent further bruising to the core of the rose.

All spring flowers may come closed and will need to be re-cut and placed in fresh water for them to bloom. This may take 1-3 days. As they grow the arrangement may lose its compact shape as the blooms grow out. This is a natural process and they may even grow downwards and open up as they search for more space. This is not a sign of the flowers wilting and most likely due to the heavier heads of the blooms and the flower searching for more space to open up
